二、克漏字測驗：14%

(A) Drinking a cup of coffee in the morning has become most people's habit. But do you drink "animal" coffee? If you do, you must know civet coffee very well. Civet coffee is a kind of special coffee made in Bali, Indonesia.

A long time ago, workers on the coffee farms couldn't use the beans they had grown. However, they found an animal called civets sometimes ate coffee beans, and some coffee beans were found in their poop. (32) It turned out that the coffee was surprisingly delicious. As time went by, it became so popular (33) even the farm owners loved it. Today, although each cup of the drink costs up to US$100, still many people around the world want to try it.

However, there is something behind the coffee you don't know. It is reported that civets were (34) in small cages. To make more coffee, people made them eat as many coffee beans as possible. These animals began to act in a strange way. For example, they ran around in the cage and (35). Perhaps, it's time for civet coffee lovers to give up drinking their favorite drink, right?

(B) Are you a fan of sports? Have you watched the Olympic Games? Do you feel excited and touched when you see the players win the games and sing the national songs? However, do you know (36)?

The first modern Olympic Games were held in 1896, and they became more and more popular, but the costs of holding Olympic Games were high. It is estimated that the Beijing Olympics cost around 53 billion USD, the Tokyo Olympics cost about 35 billion USD and the Paris Olympics cost over 9 billion USD.

(37) Actually, the hosting countries need a lot to build living places for the players. Also, many arenas, where the games are held, are also needed. Transportation such as trains and buses for visitors and players is also a big problem for the hosting countries.

Although the cost of hosting the games is high, many countries still want to host the games. That is because the hosting countries believe (38). For example, during the games, more visitors will come to watch the games and also visit the hosting countries. Also, the hosting countries may have some buildings in the poor area, and try to change their lives. Some (B) Usually, people do not know they are dreaming until they wake up from their dreams. However, people who are having lucid dreams know they are dreaming, and they may even be able to control their dreams. For example, some can decide what is going to happen next or give themselves special power in their dreams. By controlling their dreams, people sometimes find ways to deal with their fears or think of new ideas that might be helpful in their real life. Even though it sounds wonderful to have lucid dreams, there may also be some problems. People who are having lucid dreams may not have a good sleep, and sometimes they can't tell their dreams from real life. Scientists still don't know why people have lucid dreams, but they found that people who often have lucid dreams have a bigger prefrontal cortex, the very front part of the brain, than those who do not. If you get the chance, do you want to experience lucid dreams?
