Wendy
1 day ago

My friends, can you share your ideas with me? Behind our new house is a little pond. My husband and I got some duck eggs, and we and our four-year-old daughter, Naomi, helped lay the eggs together. She picked her favorite egg and took good care of it; she even named it Debbie. However, after Debbie was born, we found something wrong. We took her to the doctor, and he said she was sick. A few days later, before Naomi woke up, I found Debbie was dead. I didn't want Naomi to be sad, so my husband and I went to buy a little duck, and Naomi didn't know it was not Debbie. I told my mother about this, and she didn't agree with me. She said I should let Naomi learn about death. Did I really do the wrong thing?

Ms. Chang: Students, what do you want to be when you grow up?

Brian: You are "on the same page with" my parents. In fact, they want me to be an engineer.
Ms. Chang: I do not agree with you, Betty. Gender can't decide our jobs. We choose our jobs because of our interests.
